THINKING OUT LOUD

H. M. L. JR.

The local boys involved in the Tahoe Sugar Pine Company labor trouble and now charged with rioting are not the type with fhom the sheriff's office usually finds it necessary to have official dealings. The trouble which culminated in rock-throwing, apparently started over the dismissal of a foreman—a mighty odd thing to get excited about. In this writer's experience as a laboring man, a ditch-digger, janitor, waiter—the firing of a foreman would have been greeted with glee. Working guys usually consider foremen as a necessary evil, though the reverse is apparently true in this case.

The town will watch the trial with good-natured interest. The charge of rioting is serious but the general good character of the young men involved stands in their favor.

Speaking of sawmills—one is due to be established at the old Narrow Gauge depot. Residents of Prospect Hill are up in arms, or, at least, more than somewhat disturbed. In a problem like this, there are usually at least two points of view involved. In this one, at least three are clearly defined.

First of all, there's Mr. LaRue. He's a businessmen and from all reports, a very good one. He has a location there and he wants to profit by it. The saw mill business is booming as never before, and anyone who can get in on it, and doesn't is missing the boat. His motive, like every other business man's, is to make a profit. He promises to do his level best not to create a nuisance. And there's nothing wrong with that.

Then there's the viewpoint of residents of Prospect Hill. It's a nice neighborhood, with a good view, tidy little hoouses and a population neither rich nor destitute. They've put money into their homes. They live under pleasant conditions. They don't want the residential real estate values to go down. They don't want the pleasant conditions changed to unpleasant. They've known saw mills that gave off enormous quantities of smoke, noise and stink, and naturally don't relish the thought of that in their own front yard. They're against the saw mill. And there's nothing wrong with that.

Then there's the City Council. The more businesses there are in the town, the more prosperity there is. It is estimated the mill will employ 15 men. Our city's crying need, since the discontinuance of gold mining is for a basic industry to create a backlog of income. Lumbering bids fair to becoming that industry. The city fathers feel like encouraging, rather than discouraging any young industry and business men that wants to start one. Mayor Seaman says, "I'm for the town, first last, and always." And there's nothing wrong with that.

So there it is, a three-sided problem. The way it stands right now is that LaRue is going ahead with his plans for a mill. It's a legitimate business and there's no way for the city council to stop it now, if they wanted to. The residents of Prospect Hill have served informal notice that, should LaRue fail in his plans to keep the mill from becoming a nuisance through smoke and stink, they will file suit for abatement of a public nuisance. Whatever the outcome, we hope and believe it will be settled with good feeling. After all, as Mayor Seaman says of his own position. we're all "for the town."

BPWC To Celebrate Mother's Night

The June 19th dinner meeting of the Grass Valley Business and Professional Women's Club will be Mother's Night. Thelma Sahl, in charge of the meeting has invited each member to bring her mother or the mother of a friend. The club is busily engaged in collecting food and clothing for the needy of Europe, under the direction of Bernice Glasson.

CITY COUNCIL HEARS SAWMILL PROTESTS

The city council last evening heard several protests of residents of Prospect Hill against the erection of a sawmill on the site of what was formerly the terminal depot grounds of the Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railroad.

In addition the verbal protests received Attorney William E. Wright presented a petition signed by 122 property owners protesting to the council.

Edward LaRue who recently purchased the site from the railroad company has converted the old depot into a headquarters or a large warehouse and trucking business and now proposes to erect a sawmill with an improved burner for sawdust and slash that he claims will do away with the smoke nuisance.

Protestants pointed out that sawmills, as a rule, not only produce volumes of smoke, but also noise and the mill pond usually gives off a disagreeable odor. The site on which it is proposed to erect the mill has long been in a commercial or business zone.

During the discussion it developed the city council had already given LaRue a verbal permit to go ahead with construction and on his own behalf he stated purchased many thousand dollars worth of machinery and had begun construction of a mill pond. He said when the mill is in operation fifteen more men will be employed in addition to those at work on his trucking lines.

In Wright's argument before the council, he stated that property owners felt that the mill would be a nuisance and that "as property owners and residents they could not enjoy their property, which is their legal right" and that property would depreciate in value, but that "money can't buy the damages that will be suffered by the parties concerned."

LaRue replied that he was a property owner himself, with faith in the business future of the city. He emphasized the revenue it would bring into town. The mill he stated, will be the type known as Number 3 American. He plans to reduce the smell hazard by using fresh water either pumped from the creek or from city sources.

His new blower type burner he said, is the type approved by the state of Oregon and the U. S. Fotest Service, and is calculated to reduce smoke to a minimum. Lumber from his mill is to be used "for the veteran's home building program sponsored by the government." He has invested $16,000 in saw mill machinery and figures on spending $10,000 more. He stated that he liked Nevada City but was in a position to move elsewhere. if he and his business was not wanted here.

City Attorney Frank Finnegan rendered the opinion that the council could re-zone the section in question, or any other area of the community if it desired.

No action was taken by the council. The situation at present is that LaRue believes that he can operate his saw mill without creating a nuisance and is going ahead with his plans. The householders in the neighborhood plan no action until when and if the sawmlil becomes a nuisance. Should that occur, suit for abatement of a public nuisance may be filed.

Other business: $100 was donated to the chamber of commerce for the 4th of July celebration; J. J. Jackson was authorized to attend the traffic safety council meeting in Sacramento; purchase of insurance from Robert L. Tamblyn was authorized.

NEVADA CITY 75 YEARS AGO

Mrs. R. Shurtleff a teacher of large experience, was to succeed Miss Miller as teacher of the private school on Broad St. Terms were to be the same as in the past.

J. J. Ott for fifteen years resident of Nevada County, was announced as a candidate for county treasurer and was considered well qualified for the position.

The rich strike made on the Washington road by Wm. Michels brought to the people's minds an incident that had happened in 1861. Hank Place, owner of a stage line, while coming down from Omega in the summer of that year lost a purse containing some $900 in gold dust. The purse had been handed to him at Omega just as he was ready to start and he placed it under the cushion on the driver's seat. When he arrived here the purse was missing and Place and his partners had to make good the loss. Michels and his partner in two days had taken out between $700 and $800, some coarse river dust and some fine and because it was found on the road in surface soil lying over lava cement where a miner would never look for gold, it was believed to be the gold from the lost purse of ten years before, scattered over the area by the many passing teams.

The following are the names of pupils on the roll of honor in Miss Miller's school for the month of May: Gussie Wentworth, Willie Wentworth, Bradford Wentworth, Martha Jack, Lizzie M. Barker, Willie Gray, Nevada Barker, Nellie Hughes, Freddie Bradley, Emily King, Robert Busenius, Mamie Gray.

The roll of honor for Miss Florence Edwards school included Mary Porter, Ed Guild, Sargie Chapman. Emma Schemer, Mary Nolan, Mollie Schaffer, Amy Hinds, Carl Muller, Mary Hothersut, Frank Cresnut, Alice Dawley, Maggie Madigan, Dan McFaul, Willie Reilly, Clara Runge, Clara Man and Mary McCournin.

NEVADA CITY 50 YEARS AGO

Plans for Union Hall, a magnificent structure to be built on the northwest corner of Pine and Commercial streets, were submitted two from parties in Oakland and two from local architects. After carefully considering all the plans it was decided to accept those drawn by J. H. Rogers of this city. The new lodge building of Milo Lodge Knights of Pythias and of Hydraulic Parlor of Native Sons was to be three stories high and built of brick. The main entrance to the building was to be on Commercial St. twelve feet wide with a tiled vestibule seven feet in depth. It was expected that the entrance would be one of the prettiest found in any building in the northern central part of the state. Three store rooms with large plate glass windows were to make up the first floor, the lodge room and six offices were to be on the second floor and a large beautiful dance hall was to make up the third floor.

Gus W. Naffziger formerly of this city was married at Denver, Colo., to a young lady from Iowa with whom he became acquainted in Butte, Mont. His many friends here wished him and his all happiness.

The Hon. E. M. Preston and Mrs. A. W. Lester entertained the Excelsior Whist Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Loughridge. Hon. J. M. Walling and Mrs. J. M. Hadley won the first prizes. Second prizes went to J. M. Dadley and Mrs. Dr. Chapman.

Arrangements were nearly completed for the Firemen's Ball to be given at Armory Hall on the evening of July 4th. It was proposed to furnish complimentary tickets to all visiting firemen, military and Native Sons and visiting members of other organizations. Dancing was to continue until midnight. after which a lunch was to be spread at one of the fire houses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bucanan of Alameda are visiting Mrs. Bucanan's parents Mr. and Mrs. Art Innis.

TWIN CITY HI NOW PLANNED BY SCHOOL BOARDS

Dr. B. W. Hummelt has announced that the Grass Valley School District and Nevada City Unified School District, boards of education have in joint meeting, agreed to go forward with plans for a Nevada City-Grass Valley Senior high school be erected between the two cities.

Not a dissenting voice was raised at the recent meeting, and many members of the board are reported to be enthusiastic about the plans. A 35-acre site between the two cities is under consideration as the possible location of the high school. Two bus systems would be utilized to transport students to and from the school.

Among reasons advanced by advocates of the new development were the fact that unless a high school for the two cities is built, both towns would soon have to build additions to their high schools which would result in wasteful duplication. Also of importance is the possibility of developing a wider curriculum, with a higher degree of specialization plus the greater efficiency and economy that is poossible in a larger educational unit.

TED SIGOURNEY ELECTED TO FIRE CO. POST

Ted Sigourney was elected foreman of Pennsylvania Engine Company No. 2 at a regular election Wednesday evening in the city hall. Ralph Pierce was elected first assistant foreman, James Solaro, second assistant; Richard James, third assistant; Ray Wilde, secretary and Garfield Robson, treasurer.

Following the vote, the group went to the Deer Creek Inn for a spareribs dinner. Herb Hallet was chairman and the group of 25 had a jolly time.

TEN MEN ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF RIOT

Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen and his deputies arrested ten local men Thursday night on charges of rioting brought by J. W. Stephenson, general manager of the Tahoe Sugar Pine Co. at Washington where a labor dispute flare-up occurred Wednesday night.

The ten men are Fred Trautman 43; Frank R. Neprash 42; Wesley Fuge 27; William H. Cullen 20; Dales Kays 43; Raymond Leonard 32; M. E. Barnes 22; Herschel Lotz 26 and Jess Lash 33, all of Nevada City.

James McLeon, Alvin Bansen and Ed Cotters had been named in the complaint but charges were dropped when it was established that they were not involved in the fracas.

The trouble specified in the riot charge started when a group of men walking out on their sawmill jobs endeavored to convince other workers of the advisability of joining them. Angry words were exchanged, tempers flared and according to one report, a tire iron was brandished by one of the non-striking workers who refused to be convinced. The melee according to reports, culminated in a hail of rocks upon a company automobile. an ex-army staff car used to transport workers to and from the mill.

One version of the beginning of the labor trouble has it that the management fired a man who was working on a rather hazardous job; Paul Cullen, the foreman whose dismissal led to the walk out of his friends among the workers, was ordered to place another man in that assertedly hazardous job. The man appointed for this work refused. Cullen was ordered to fire him, but declined to do so. Thereupon, Stephenson fired him and his friends walked out in sympathy.

The management states that Cullen was fired "because of his attitude," which allegedly showed favoritism to some workers.

At the preliminary arraignment Friday morning Judge George W. Gildersleeve lowered bail for the ten defendants from $1000 to $500. Saturday afternoon Judge Gildersleeve announced that the preliminary hearing would be held.

No trouble was experienced by the sheriff's office in rounding up the accused. Ernie Young who was at work operating the projection machines in the Broadway Theatre was permitted to finish his shift, and like several others came into the sheriff's office of his own vilition.

The ten accused spent a restless night in jail. Thursday but reported that their spirit was not unduly low. All were out on the reduced bail by Friday. Most of them have already secured other employment.

Russell York, one of the contractors engaged in hauling logs to the Tahoe Sugar Pine Company's sawmill at Washington, 17 miles east of this city, succumbed to injuries caused by a log rolling over him while he was loading a truck in the woods. The log had been lifted to the truck but when released rolled off.

The accident happened at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He died at the Miners Hospital here at 5:30 last evening. Coroner Alvah Hooper is in charge of the remains. York was aged 35 years.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder at the steedfast calm
In which the green trees meet with fate,
The problems which afflict mankind,
Their sturdy hearts seem not to agitate.
The tall pines on the mountain side
Sing loudest when the storm winds blow,
The secret of their prestine faith,
I would that I might know.

I wonder how many lessons of great spiritual worth we trees has before him daily examples of courage, fortitude and

The great teees of our forests are without the intoleranc- steadfastness of spirit which he might well emulate through the vicissitudes of his restless years.

Above our home tall pines and cedars stand reaching upward, through the clear mountain air and coping with all the vraying changes of the passing seasons. They sing when the storms blow, they bend their kingly heads to the tempest, but when the storm is past, they look up all undaunted and are we know stronger for the struggle through which they have so valiently passed.

the death and annihiliation of living trees shall never be laid es and bigotries which possess mankind, the scrubbiest little scrub oak, the most insignificant of shrubs and the humblest of flowers may take shelter under the green banners of great trees and grow unmolested untill man the lord of creation takes over and makes the changes which he deems expedient.

There is nothing more beautiful and inspiring than a noble tree, nothing more serenely calm and steadfast. No matter what its environment may be it makes the most of all that nature has povided for its sustenance. It wears the roseate crown of sunset of shimmering halo of sunrise with equal grace and majesty, it lifts its fronded head to the blue of unclouded skies or bows uncompliningly beneath the lashing of the storm.

I wonder if the lovely and valuable trees of the forests hope that the little human creatures who come to them for recreation during the dry summer months, will safeguard them in every possible manner, in order that they may continue to shelter the wild life which is one of our greatest assets and provide play grounds and health resorts for those who love nature and find renewed health and happiness under the wild wood trees.

If trees could speak, if forests could cry out against the carelessness of many campers, hunters and vacationists, I'm sure we would hear words to which we would give heed. As they cannot speak themserves let us resort to strict discipline. Let us bank our camp fires, see that no live spark remains in cigaret or match ere we toss them aside and make sure that we will never be to blame for the destruction of forests and that the death and annihilation f living trees shall never be laid at our door. —A. Merriam Conner.

GRASS VALLEY CHAMBER GIVES FOURTH A BOOST

The Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce is sending a letter to all business and professional men in the city giving the Fourth of July celebration, which this year takes place in Nevada City a big boost. The two cities join forces and celebrate in alternate years.

Under the heading Nevada City's Year, the letter reads: The Whiskerinos, twentieth century impressions of the Forty Niners have started the ball rolling. Both Nevada City and Grass Valley clubs have been very active. Now it is time for you to think of that float you plan to enter in the Fourth of July parade, so we are urging all you Grass Valleyans to enter into the Forty Niner spirit and take part in the celebration. As soon as you have decided what your float will be please give the information to your chamber of commerce.

Let's cooperate to the fullest. It is Nevada City's Year.
